The Golden Age of Hollywood

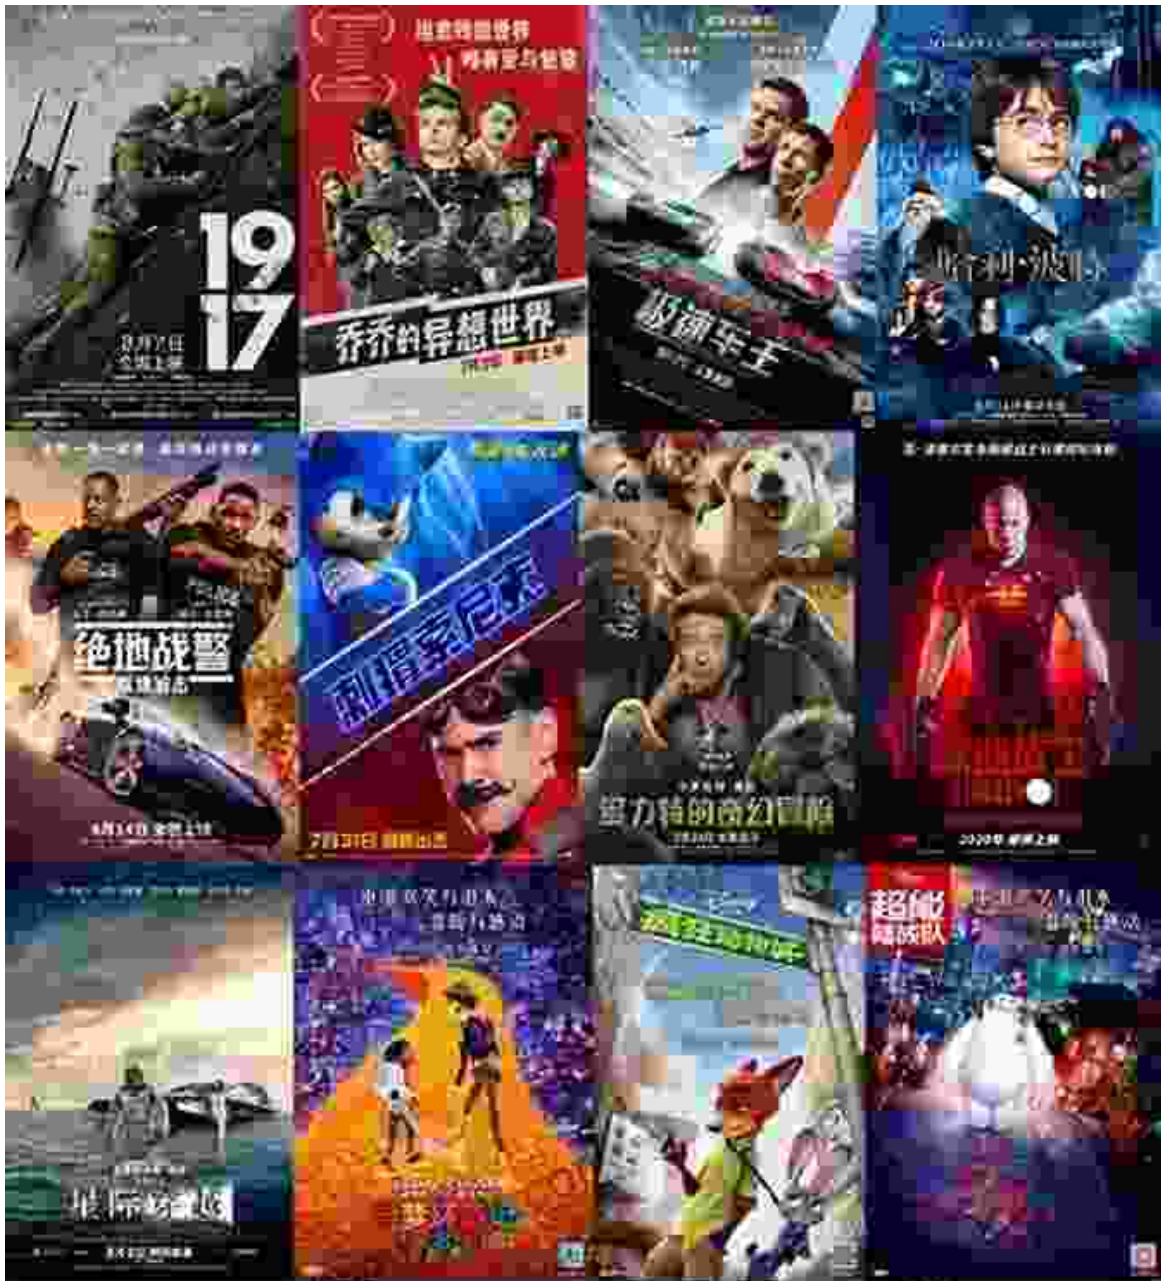

The golden age of Hollywood, spanning from the 1920s to the 1950s, was a period of unparalleled creativity and innovation in filmmaking. During this time, Hollywood produced some of its most enduring classics, including Casablanca, Gone with the Wind, Citizen Kane, and The Wizard of Oz. These films not only showcased the talents of legendary actors, directors, and writers but also reflected the social and cultural changes of the time.

Hollywood's Biggest Blockbusters

In recent decades, Hollywood has shifted its focus from classic dramas and comedies to big-budget action and adventure films. These blockbusters, often based on popular comic books, video games, or novels, have become a staple of the industry, drawing in audiences with their spectacular special effects, fast-paced action, and star-studded casts. From the Marvel Cinematic Universe to the Fast & Furious franchise, Hollywood's biggest blockbusters have become global phenomena.
